

Comparison of technologies and impacts

An overview over the life cycle results of different technology groups compared to the global average mix of electricity production technologies. The indicators are the use of the bulk materials (cement, iron and steel, copper, and aluminium), land occupation, greenhouse gas emissions, and the endpoint indicators for human health and ecosystems (excluding the contributions of climate change and land use, but including the production of materials.)